Zhengzhou

Founded some 3,500 years ago in the Central Plains region, Zhengzhou is one of China's most ancient cities. Much of its historical legacy was lost during WWII, though around 1,400 cultural relics can still be found here. Attractions in and around the city include Henan Museum; the world-renowned Shaolin Temple, birthplace of kung fu; the Forest of Pagodas, which is China's oldest temple; Henan Museum; and Songshan National Forest Park, which hosts one of China's Five Great Mountains. Given Zhengzhou's industrial prowess, this is also a popular destination for business travellers and investors.

The city lies on the southern bank of the Yellow River, and is one of the Eight Great Ancient Capitals of China. Zhengzhou has a population of 9,378,000 inhabitants with an urban population of 6,406,000, the city is one of the main built-up areas of Henan region. Zhengzhou is now a rapidly growing city. Greater Zhengzhou was named as one of the 13 emerging megacities or megalopolises in China in a July 2012.
